How do you measure success? (Quality, Quantity)

Success is a subjective term. It can mean different things to different people. It can be defined in terms of financial success, personal growth, or social status. It can be defined in terms of the achievement of one's goals, or the fulfillment of one's dreams.

Success is a relative term. It is not the same for everyone. It is not the same for you and me. It is not the same for you and your neighbor.

Success is a personal term. It is defined by the individual. It is defined by the person who is seeking it.

Success is a process, not a destination.

Success is a journey, not a goal. It is a path, not a point. It is a process, not a product. It is a way of life, not a way to life. It is a state of mind, not a state of affairs. It is a feeling, not a fact. It is a dream, not a reality.

Success is a continuous process. It is not a one-time event. It is not a single achievement. It is a constant state of being.

Success is a never-ending journey. It is a path that leads to more questions, more challenges, more growth.

Success is a journey of discovery.

Success is a journey of learning.

Success is a journey of growth.
